SUPREME VICTORY FOR VETERANS

By Paul E. Dillard,
National Commander

JUL 13, 2022

Dear American Legion Family and Friends,

Last month, the U.S. Supreme Court issued a victory not just for veterans but for our entire nation. The Court ruled in Torres v. Texas that a former state trooper had the right to sue his state after it refused to re-hire him following a military deployment.

Le Roy Torres was an officer with the Texas Department of Public Safety until he was called to active duty in 2007. While in Iraq, he was exposed to burn pits and returned home suffering from constrictive bronchitis. Though his respiratory condition prevented him from working again as a state trooper, the agency refused to offer an accommodation and place him in an alternative position.

Normally, sovereign immunity protects states from paying damages to its citizens. However, then-Justice Stephen Breyer, pointed out the responsibility that all states have in supporting the efforts of our military.

“In joining together to form a Union, the States agreed to sacrifice their sovereign immunity for the good of the common defense,” Breyer wrote in his 5-4 majority opinion.

The American Legion applauds this ruling. At our 2017 national convention in Reno, Nev., delegates passed Resolution No. 85, which calls for the strengthening of employment and reemployment rights for National Guard members and reservists returning from deployment.

A legal adviser to The American Legion offered this wise summary of the ruling in an email to our staff. “The opinion reinforces deference to Congress in deciding how to create the strongest national defense and emphasizes that if the nation is conquered, nothing else matters.”

This case is just another example of how a policy that benefits a veteran also benefits our country.

NATO 'AIR SHIELDING' TO BOLSTER MISSILE DEFENSES ALONG ALLIANCE'S EASTERN EDGES

By: Jennifer H. Svan
Stars and Stripes

JUL 14, 2022

NATO will add missile defense assets along the alliance's eastern borders to guard against any potential threats that arise from Russia's full-scale invasion of Ukraine, U.S. Air Force and NATO officials said Wednesday.

The strategy is called "air shielding," an expression coined during last month's meeting of NATO leaders in Madrid, said German Brig. Gen. Christoph Pliet, deputy chief of staff operations at NATO Allied Air Command headquarters at Ramstein Air Base in Germany.

The idea is to "deter and shield against any possible Russian aggression," Pliet said, going beyond what NATO already has employed on the eastern flank since the Feb. 24 invasion.

Additional assets will be deployed for four to six months at a time, shoring up an area from Turkey to the Baltic states, Pliet said, while speaking with reporters alongside Maj. Gen. Joel L. Carey, U.S. Air Forces in Europe — Air Forces Africa director of operations, strategic deterrence and nuclear integration.

NATO partners will add "both air and ground-based air defense assets and the supporting enablers" needed for rotational forces, Carey said. Officials didn't go into details on the number of additional troops that would rotate east.

Earlier this month, Air Force F-35s, deployed from the U.S. to Spangdahlem Air Base, Germany, were sent on to Amari Air Base in Estonia. Beyond traditional air policing patrols, they'll be able to "react on very short notice" from multiple locations, Pliet said.

Some ground-based air defense systems have been deployed as well, Pliet said, though he did not disclose where.

There's no indication Russia intends to attack NATO territory anytime soon, Pliet said. But the stepped-up use of missiles, drones and combat aircraft near the borders of NATO countries increases the chances of a miscalculation, or loss of guidance or control, NATO has said.

"We are currently in a shield," Pliet said. If a miscalculation occurs, "we want to intercept, interrogate" and escort the aircraft out of NATO airspace.

He said the war in Ukraine has "brought back the sense of unity to the alliance and helps us elevate to a new level, helps us to challenge any threats that we might see in NATO."

TECHNOLOGY 101

is a resource for those who wish to learn basic skills with the powerful technology of today's world. Increased proficiency with computers and cell-phones is good both personally and professionally.

iPhone Vs. Smartphone

Technically, there's absolutely no difference between an iPhone and a smartphone. Any handheld device with a touchscreen interface capable of performing most of the functions of a computer and a running operating system is considered a smartphone. A few years back, no one in the world thought people needed cellphones until they woke up to witness one of the most revolutionary technological advances in the history of mankind. No one would have thought such small device would become a sensation. Some would say smartphones emerged from so-called cell-phones when cellphone manufacturers started putting sophisticated programs and web-browsing features into their handsets. The question hangs on how you define a smartphone.

Summary of iPhone Vs. Smartphone

A smartphone is just a mobile phone with calling, SMS service, web browsing capability, Bluetooth, Wi-Fi, document editing and sharing, and all the features you'd expect from your personal computer. iPhone is no different. However, iPhone isn't just any smartphone; it's Apple – one of the world's most valuable companies. The iPhone changed the world around us in no time, and over time, became one of the first choices of smartphone, but it's an expensive choice to make.

GAMING EVENT TO TAKE PLACE DURING NATIONAL CONVENTION

The American Legion
JUL 13, 2022

Since last December, The American Legion and Regiment Gaming – the largest military gaming community in the nation – have collaborated on multiple online and in-person events. That relationship will be back on display during the 2022 American Legion National Convention in August. Regiment Gaming will have a designated area set up with gaming stations in the Wisconsin Center. The exact location and hours of operation will be provided once they're available; Paradox Customs is donating all of the PCs and related equipment for the stations.

Chris Earl, a U.S. Marine Corps veteran and the founder/CEO of Regiment Gaming, said he was contacted by American Legion Membership Engagement Coordinator Doug Chace about staging the event in Milwaukee. Earl said setting up the stations is an opportunity to “show Legionnaires the power of video games. We're going to set up eight gaming stations ... and it will be a combination of free play – people come over, test out the games, have fun – and we'll also have a 2v2 Call of Duty tournament.”

Gamers will be able to sign up for the tournament at the venue. Check back for more specifics as the convention draws closer.

“I think this is a great opportunity,” Earl said. “There are millions of military gamers out there. This should definitely drive some younger (veterans) who attend the national convention.”

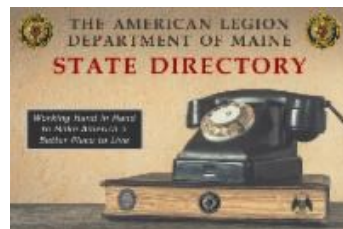

Last December, The American Legion and Regiment Gaming hosted an online video gaming tournament between veterans and pro-gamers that was viewed by more than 25,000 people. The following February, the two entities again partnered, this time bringing in Department of Minnesota Service Officer Jeremy Wolfsteller for an online Department of Veterans Affairs assistance workshop that provided information on various benefits available to veterans, as well as how to get them or reapply if previously denied.

Regiment and the Legion again collaborated last May, this time for a Halo Local Area Network (LAN) team tournament that included a Legion-funded $10,000 prize purse.

“This is definitely going to be unique from events we've done in the past,” Earl said. “Typically, the average age of our competitors is 23. I'm really, [really super excited.]”

MILITARY TRIVIA

A: On August 9, 1942, ships of the Japanese Imperial Navy surrounded the Island & began the first major Battle of Guadalcanal. Within 1 hour, the Japanese had caused major damage to or sunk many ships, including the USS Chicago, the HMAS Canberra, the USS Astoria, the USS Vincennes & the USS Quincy. They used the “Long Lance” torpedo, the first torpedo ever to have a gyroscope guidance system & since it weighed over 6000lbs., only one was needed to cut a destroyer in half.
